LEARNING A LANGUAGE IS A GREAT IDEA

I choose studying English because I love that language and during the last five or six years I haven't used it very much.

I started studying English when I was eleven years old. Before that age, I had been studying French at the "Alianza francesa" but the school was awful and the method very boring. So, when at school I had to decide what language study I chose English. Then I was lucky and had very good teachers.

I spent some summers in Ireland and during my academic and professional life I have been improving my English level.

I think, in the past, I got a quite good level of speaking and reading but, for the last five or six years I haven't practised very much.

And I love having the possibility of understanding people when traveling. Most of the people in different parts of the world speak English.

In the other hand, not only speaking English is important or interesting.

The more language you know the better you feel when you are abroad.

Studying languages is also funny. It doesn't produce stress because you don't need to be very well informed about anything, nor to have ideological problems, et. you can just enjoy and learn.

(learning anything is always stimulated)

I recommend studying languages just only for pleasure. And, at this moment of my life ___ is the most important reason for studying English.

LEARNING A LANGUAGE IS A GREAT IDEA.

My name is XXXX and I am going to talk about my experience Learning English and what I think about it.

I studied Tourism Management at University, so for me, English was a very important tool to have. So I could comunicate with people around the world, no matter what nationality, as English is the universal langiage.

Learning English opened a door for me to know about other cultures and nationalities. To improve my speaking skills, I moved to the UK, where I met people from all around the globe. IT gave me an ordeal of exposure on how people behave in different situations and their points of views on different social matters.

I would highly recommed this experience to anyone as it will give them the chance to be more open minded, provide them with great social skills and, obviously, they learn a new language, which is an incredible tool to have. So go and do it! Don't miss the opportunity as you will not regret it! 😊
